1st Annual Provincial Aboriginal Job & Trade Fair:
"Connect with one of the fastest growing workforce in Canada"

the Aboriginal labour force!

May 23-24, 2014

Wu Centre (UNB) Fredericton, New Brunswick

Expected attendees to the tradeshow are:

- Young Aboriginal women attending Young Wabanaki Women Rising – Finding Your Voice (YWWR), a provincial gathering for 17-25 year old Aboriginal women focused on creating healthy, violent-free environments and post-high school options for young Aboriginal women
- Aboriginal high school students from around the province
- Aboriginal people who are workforce ready, interested in pursuing post-secondary studies and finding out work opportunities

We invite the following exhibitors:

- Post-Secondary Institutions
- Employers (especially those in the trades, health and information technology fields) interested in making a connection with the Aboriginal labour force
- Corporate sponsors of the Young Wabanaki Women Rising event
- Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal community organizations that offer services and/or resources in the areas of violence prevention, post-secondary education, employment, entrepreneurship and the trades
- Other Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal community organizations that offer services and/or resources relevant to young Aboriginal women and the Aboriginal population

What to expect as an exhibitor:

- Participant incentives and activities to motivate young people to get the most out of visiting your exhibit in the way of information and learnings.
- Meals and refreshments for up to two exhibitors are included in your exhibitor fee (meals for additional people can be purchased at a cost)
- Access to an Exhibitor's Lounge
- Skirted 6' table and two chairs
- Wireless high speed internet access (100 megabits per second).
